Your time is valuable. You shouldn't have to wait for a locksmith to survey existing hardware when you are considering a lock system conversion. Locksmiths are expensive too. Most locksmiths will charge $150 just to visit one location, then they charge on top of that to survey the lock system. Before you can even decide if a conversion is right for your locations, you've already spent hundreds or even thousands, without having any new lock hardware to show for it. It's time to put a stop to this - with Digital Site Survey (DSS).

Use DSS to survey locations whenever its convenient for you. Use your smart phone or other WiFi-enabled device to snap hardware photos and submit them to InstaKey hardware experts for analysis. If, for whatever reason, you decide not to convert your sites to InstaKey, you pay nothing.

If you decide to convert to InstaKey, you'll be billed a nominal fee when we build your order. That cost is based on building size, which traslates to what is needed of a hardware expert's time. That cost is usually only 10% of what you would have paid a locksmith.
